

JEWES AND JEWISH COMMUNITIES IN PUBLIC ECCLESIASTICAL LAW

9th Summer Academy on the History of the Jews in the Holy Roman Empire and its Successor States

Vienna
17 – 31 July 2017

The summer academy on the history of the Jews in the Holy Roman Empire and its successor states was established in 2009 as spin-off product of the research-cluster „The Jewish Holy Roman Empire“. From its inception the main objective of the summer academy has been to acquaint students and early career scholars with an intensive, critical, interdisciplinary, research-oriented and source-based training in the history of the Jews and their relations with the non-Jewish environment in Central Europe from the late 15th century to the present. The programme of the summer academy is focused on, but not limited to the Holy Roman Empire.

It comprises altogether five components, each of which consists of at least thirteen teaching units of 90 minutes each:

1. Background Knowledge and Discussion
2. In-depth teaching units on the special topic
3. Excursions
4. Paleography Courses
5. Historical Moot Courts on the Ius Commune and Historical Jewish Law Moot Court

Paleography courses are offered in six different languages giving the participants the opportunity to acquire or enhance reading skills in original German, Hebrew, Yiddish, Judeo-German and Judeo-Spanish sources on different levels.

Special Topic of the Summer Academy 2017

„Jews and Jewish Communities in Public Ecclesiastical Law“ is the special topic of this year's summer academy. What, at first sight, appears to be a topic for specialists only, has historically been an important factor in framing the relationship between state, society and Jews as a community and as individuals. In European countries whose religious constitution is not based on the complete separation between state and church (Austria, Germany, France until 1905, Greece, Russia, Switzerland) the interface between state law and religious laws is still a crucial factor for understanding the relationship between Jews, state and society. Against the background of historical research being traditionally focused on the emancipation of Jews as individuals, the assumption of a general trend of secularization and the invention of the Jews as a modern nation the legal foundations for collective Jewish continuity in public ecclesiastical law have fallen into widespread oblivion. It is the objective of this year's summer academy to bring back this important, if marginalized part of Jewish history. It is crucial for the understanding not only of European Jewish history. Knowledge of the interface between state law and the laws of religious communities is also critical for understanding the political and legal system of the State of Israel.

MICHAEL BROYDE

Michael J. Broyde is professor of law at Emory Law and a senior fellow at the Center for the Study of Law Religion at Emory University. His primary areas of interest are law and religion, Jewish law and ethics, and comparative religious law. Besides Jewish law and family law, Professor Broyde has taught Federal Courts, Alternative Dispute Resolution, and Secured Credit and Bankruptcy. He received a juris doctor from New York University and published a note on the law review. He also clerked for Judge Leonard I. Garth of the United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit.

Professor Broyde is ordained (yoreh yoreh ve-yadin yadin) as a rabbi by Yeshiva University and was a member (dayan) of the Beth Din of America, the largest Jewish law court in America. He was the director of that court during the 1997–1998 academic year, while on leave from Emory. Outside of Emory, Professor Broyde was the founding rabbi of the Young Israel synagogue in Atlanta, a founder of the Atlanta Torah MiTzion kollel study program and a board member of many organizations in Atlanta.

Professor Broyde has published more than 75 articles and book chapters on various aspects of law and religion and Jewish law, including „A Jewish Law View of World Law,” Emory Law Journal 54: 79-93 (spec. ed., 2005), about how Jewish law might classify international law, and a series of vigorous exchanges in several publications on military ethics in Jewish law. He also has published a number of articles in the area of federal courts, including an article in the Harvard Journal of Law and Public Policy on the impeachment process.

JONATHAN BURNSIDE

Jonathan Burnside is Professor of Biblical Law and teaches Criminal Law, Jewish Law and Jurisprudence. He has degrees in Law and Criminology, both from the University of Cambridge, and a Doctorate in Law from the University of Liverpool. He joined the School of Law as Lecturer in 2001, becoming Reader in 2007 and Professor in 2012. Previously, he spearheaded ‚Relational Justice’ for the Jubilee Centre, Cambridge, and was appointed by the Home Office and the Prison Service England and Wales to head an evaluation of faith-based units in prisons in England and Wales.

His work explores the relationship between law, theology and criminology from theoretical and applied perspectives, beginning with „Relational Justice: Repairing the Breach” (1994, Waterside Press) and including „My Brother’s Keeper: Faith-based units in prisons” (2005, Willan). Within the School’s Centre for the Study of Law and Religion he addresses some of the ways in which faith-based bodies of law vie to govern normative behaviour, in ways that may coincide or conflict with the dominant legal order. His work on biblical law includes „The Signs of Sin: Seriousness of offence in biblical law” (2003, Continuum) and, most recently, „God, Justice and Society: Aspects of Law and Legality in the Bible” (2011, OUP).

He has served as Independent Advisor to the Correctional Services Accreditation Panel (Ministry of Justice) and the National Offender Management Service. He has been a David Patterson Visiting Fellow in Jewish Law at the Oxford Centre for Hebrew and Jewish Studies, Sir Harry Gibbs Visiting Fellow in Law at Emmanuel College, University of Queensland and T.
